Rural Development is a package of policy and interventions by government and organizations through projects and programmes that aim to foster socio-economic change and human development in rural areas. It is a key strategy to reduce poverty, unemployment and to improve infrastructure in rural areas in any country. Rural development is also about changing people’s lives; enabling people in rural areas to take control of their destinies, by enjoying the freedom and dignity. Rural development is not simply about agriculture, but covers a broad field that embraces agrarian transformation; the leveraging of natural resources and effective land reform; the deployment of adequate infrastructure, and the strength of effective partnerships into a cohesive force to end hunger, poverty and unemployment. Rural development is a triangle of dimensions that include; package of policy of government involving politics of interests, individuals and organizations with profound implications for both thinking and action.

A number of global shifts are creating more complex, dynamic and challenging environment for rural transformation. Countries need to take specific actions and make specific policy choices, interventions and investments to enable rural people to seize the opportunities and deal with the challenges that come with transformation processes. Rural development initiatives have undergone a series of shifts in emphases, approaches and funding schemes in many countries.

Hyderabad is the capital of the Indian state of Telangana and de jure capital of Telangana. Hyderabad City has a population of about 6.9 million and about 9.7 million in Hyderabad Metropolitan Region, making it the fourth-most populous city and sixth-most populous urban agglomeration in India. Hyderabad is situated on hilly terrain around artificial lakes, including Hussain Sagar—predating the city's founding—north of the city centre. Hyderabad emerged as the foremost centre of culture in India with the decline of the Mughal Empire. This migration resulted in a mingling of North and South Indian languages, cultures and religions, which has since led to a co-existence of Hindu and Muslim traditions, for which the city has become noted. A further consequence of this north–south mix is that both Telugu and Urdu are official languages of Telangana. The mixing of religions has resulted in many festivals being celebrated in Hyderabad such as Ganesh Chaturthi, Diwali and Bonalu of Hindu tradition and Eid ul-Fitr and Eid al-Adha by Muslims.
